

Heather Fulton - Canada

Nova Scotia-Newfoundland and Labrador Representative Canadian Young Farmers Forum (CYFF)

Heather Fulton is a sixth generation farmer in Stewiacke, Nova Scotia, Canada. Upon completing her Agricultural Business Diploma from the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, she returned home to the family farm.

The farm consists of sixty purebred milking holsteins, replacement heifers and calves, two hundred acres of land used to grow corn and grass silage for the cattle and extra hay to sell. Aside from working on the farm Heather is very active in the agricultural community as well, she represents Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and Labrador on the Canadian Young Farmers Forum.

She sits on the boards for both her local and provincial holstein organization and represents Young Farmers on the provincial Agricultural Awareness Committee. Heather enjoys being active and can be found doing numerous outdoor sports ranging from scuba diving to downhill skiing. She is very passionate about agriculture and is excited to learn all she can and exchange ideas.
