

Héctor Malarín
Chief - Environment, Rural Development and Disaster Risk
Management
Inter-American Development Bank (IDB)

Mr. Héctor Malarín, a Peruvian citizen, has been with the Inter-American Development Bank since 1994. Previous assignments at the Bank include working as Principal Project Economist in the Environment and Natural Resources Management Division, Regional Operations Department 1; and as Project Economist in the Environment and Natural Resources Management Division, Regional Operations Department 3 (RE3/EN3).

Mr. Malarín has lead projects around Latin America in the areas of agriculture, natural resources management, sustainable regional development, land administration and tourism.

Mr. Malarín holds a Ph.D. in Agricultural Economics from the University of California, Davis. His previous work assignments include serving as an assistant professor in the Economics Department at the Universidad del Pacifico in Lima, Peru.